Academic Objectives

Based on whole-person education, we emphasize the acquisition of professional knowledge, teaching skills, and the formation of sound work ethics to cultivate professional personnel in foreign language teaching who, in consequence, will have a well-balanced personality, strong ethical values, and a positive and healthy attitude toward educating young people. Students will also acquire a solid academic foundation to enable them to pave the way for better foreign language teaching quality in Taiwan.

Curriculum Features

Our courses largely focus on training students to teach foreign languages, and to design foreign language curriculum and multimedia materials. Courses include enhanced competence in two foreign languages, expertise in language teaching in theory and practice, cultural and cross-cultural communication courses, implementation of instructional technology in language teaching, literature for children and young adults, testing and evaluation of foreign language learning, methodology of education research, and domestic and overseas internships. The department curriculum design has the following features:

- Courses are taught with English as the medium of instruction.
- Encourage language and professional certification.
- Stress language teaching theories and practice.
- In addition to English, students are encouraged to learn another language such as French, German, Japanese, or one of the Southeastern languages.
- Many courses encompass research training elements to equip students with research skills and knowledge.

Curriculum Features

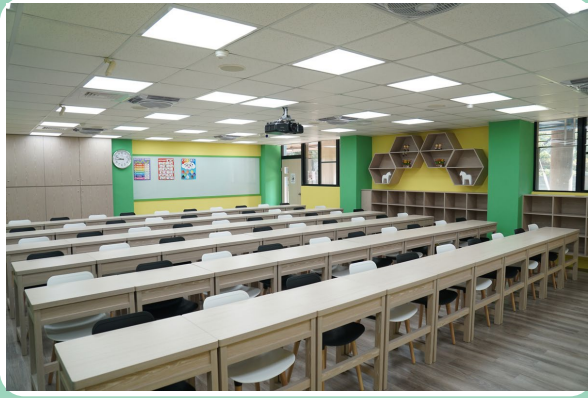

- Encourage domestic or overseas internship.
- Opportunity to enroll in the teacher education program or take other language courses to develop additional specialty.
- Opportunity to choose double majors, minor studies or education –related courses, and help them be more competitive in future work place.

Faculty

- There are 9 full-time faculty members; all faculty members are highly qualified and experienced professionals with relevant academic backgrounds in applied linguistics, TESOL, curriculum design, and educational technology, with years of teaching or practical working experiences, and have cooperated and conducted research with the related industries.
- To enhance teachers' and students' practical and professional knowledge, each semester, the department invites experienced professionals in related fields as guest speakers to share their practical experiences or to teach collaboratively with the faculty.
